Smarti Solutions Announces New Office Relocation And Company Expansion

NEW YORK (March 18, 2008) – Smarti Solutions, a New York City based agency search firm, announced its recent attainment of a five-year lease on 1,000 square feet of office space in Midtown Manhattan to accommodate growth and staff expansion.

Brian Pitre joins the Smarti team as its new Sales & Marketing Manager. He will expand new business and agency recruitment as well as spearhead the launch the company's blog and other marketing initiatives. He comes to the company from the marketing department of ePromos Promotional Products.

The new office, located at 109 West 38th Street, affords the 6-year old company a convenient midtown Manhattan location. "I'm really excited that we were fortunate enough to find such suitable space to expand," said President, Michele Harris, "Subletting is typically the only option for small businesses. When you look at our growth and opportunity—particularly in a recession, a five-year lease in our own space is a no-brainer."

The company projects increased growth in terms of both its staff and client base in the upcoming months. For more information about Smarti Solutions, please visit www.getsmarti.com.
